FIRE NEARLY SPELLS DOOM OF FALL RIVER

FIRE RAGES IN BUSINESS AREA ALL LAST NIGHT

PROPERTY VALUED AT MORE THAN $25,000,000 IS DESTROYED

2 SCORE BUILDINGS, INCLUDING BANKS, FACTORIES, NEWS-PAPER PLANTS RAZED

By WILLARD E. MARTIN (United Press Staff Correspondent) Fall River, Mass., Feb. 3. — Fire which had raged all night through the business district of Fall River was brought under control at 3 A. M. today after destroying property valued at more than $25,000,000.

At dawn the fire which had razed more than two score buildings, including banks, factories and newspaper plants, was still burning, but firemen checked its progress.

Half a square mile in the heart of the business and industrial section of the "Spindle City" lay in ruins. Within nine hours the flames, which started at 7 P. M. Thursday in the idle plant of the Pocasset Textile Mills, had spread with such fury that at times the entire city of 125,000 population appeared to be doomed.

Five hundred regular firemen recruited from dozens of nearby towns in Massachusetts and Rhode Island, and hundreds of volunteers fought all night against the heavy odds of a freezing wind and darkness.

The city's homes had been saved but a bulk of the business capital which its residents had spent years in building up was destroyed. On top of the industrial depression which already was making itself felt here, the blow was the most disastrous in the history of Fall River.

Twelve persons, including five firemen, were seriously injured and 250 persons were treated for minor hurts.

More than 20 buildings were in the direct path of the blaze and were destroyed.

Included in this list were the great Pocasset Mills, the Rialto Theatre, the Hotel Mohican, the News-Herald plant, the bus terminal and numerous smaller structures.

The post office and city hall—two of the city's most beautiful buildings—were isolated by flames but did not burn. They are constructed of granite.

The two buildings, in the light of the flames this morning, were but stark, blackened outlines against a background of destruction.

The "Granite Block" on Main Street was closest to the mills and was the first to catch the full force of the fire.

Then the blaze leaped to Central Street and the Mohican Hotel was destroyed. The Rialto Theatre, packed with the regular night crowd caught fire next. The manager led his customers to safety before the theatre collapsed.

The Premier Theatre also was badly damaged.

The flames spread uptown and finally ignited the big Durfee Mill at 12th Street.

The flames spread on to Eighteenth Street.

It was so cold that the streets were turned to sheets of ice and the charred walls in many places were ice coated.

Much of the fire fighting apparatus was coated with ice and rendered useless.

Scenes of desolation came through the glow of the fire early today.

Much of the city is built of granite and some of these great building walls still were standing. At the Pocasset Mills—where all three structures were levelled—there stands only a 200-foot chimney as evidence of the city's great business enterprises.

The "Granite Block" for years one of the main business buildings, was a mass of twisted girders. Firemen dynamited some of the walls of that building in an attempt to check the fire. But it was a useless attempt. Several firemen were injured in the explosion.

Stories of heroism came even while most of the city was guarding against destruction of its property or preparing to flee to safety.

SAN JUAN IS ENTHUSIASTIC OVER LINDBERGH

ENTERTAINING HERO OF SOUTH AMERICAN GOOD WILL FLIGHTS

GUEST AT SEVERAL FUNCTIONS TODAY, TO FLY TO SANTO DOMINGO SOON

San Juan, Porto Rico, Feb. 3.—(U.P.)—San Juan today entertained Col. Charles A. Lindbergh as enthusiastically as if he had made a 1,000 mile flight instead of a hop of 75 miles yesterday in coming here from the Virgin Islands.

While the flight was short in distance it almost linked the Lesser and Greater Antilles in the young flier's program of extending good will.

He will be a guest at several functions today and this evening and tomorrow will fly to Santo Domingo.

Havana, Feb. 3.—Plans for the reception for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh when he lands here Feb. 8, have been completed by President Machado, Martinez Ortiz, secretary of state and high army and navy officials.

Lindbergh will be greeted when he lands at Cuba airport by secretaries of the army and navy, Dr. Rafael Irujo and Gen. Alberto Herrera, chief of staff of the army, in behalf of the Cuban government. He then will be escorted to the presidential palace.

Other plans include a call to the Pan American conference, another at the Yacht club and then a banquet given by President Machado, where the Cuban president will decorate Lindbergh with the Order of Carlos Manuel Decapades, with the title of Grand Official, the highest honor within the power of the government.

FROM 50 TO 100 MULES KILLED IN RAIL MISHAP

Mt. Vernon, Ill., Feb. 3.—(U.P.)—Between 50 and 100 mules were killed at Twin Trestle, 13 miles south of here, last night, when 23 cars of a fast Louisville and Nashville freight, St. Louis, Mo., to Howell, Ind., were derailed. No member of the train crew was injured.

A hobo, believed to have been on the train, might have been killed, officials said.

An exchange near the Wilbur Hotel, continued at their tasks for more than an hour as they watched the flames consume the hotel and eat steadily towards their building. The telephone lines finally were put out of commission shortly before midnight as the ice and flames snapped cables.

Residents living on the edge of the business district this morning prepared to leave their homes. While there was no general exodus, many fled from the path of danger, carrying some of their possessions.

The investment in property in Fall River is immense. In the mills 3,000,000 spindles represented invested capital of $25,000,000. Two of the great mills were destroyed.

The city is a shipping and manufacturing center on Narragansett Bay. It is 49 miles southwest of Boston and 18 miles southeast of Providence, R. I.

HICKMAN DEFENSE NEARS ITS CLOSE, SOON TO JURY

DEFENSE TO REST CASE WITH TESTIMONY OF ALIENISTS OFFERED

STATE MAY BEGIN BY CALLING PERRY M. PARKER, FATHER OF MARION

By DAN CAMPBELL (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Los Angeles, Feb. 3. — Edward Hickman's defense neared its close today and the state of California was soon to begin its attempt to send him to the gallows for the murder of Marion Parker.

Defense attorneys expected to rest their case early this afternoon, with the testimony of alienists who believed Hickman insane.

It was believed the state would begin by calling Perry M. Parker, father of the girl for whose murder Hickman is on trial.

Parker believes Hickman "should be hanged." In this he is supported by his wife. "We don't base our belief on a spirit of revenge," Parker said, "but we think society should be made safe from such a fiend."

The trial reached a climax yesterday when the Hickman family—mother, father and brother of Edward—came into court to term Edward insane. The father, Thomas Hickman, and the brother, Alfred, told of the insanity heritage on the mother's side.

Thomas Hickman told of the family life and of the threatened murderous attacks by his wife.

Los Angeles, Feb. 3.—A delusion that he was to be the "Messiah of Modern Youth in Crime," was harbored by William Edward Hickman when he murdered Marion Parker, defense alienists testified, in substance, at his trial today.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 3.—Capt. Charles Edwards, friend and adviser of the Hickman family, would not consider taking money for the part he played in bringing about the arrest of Edward Hickman, now on trial in Los Angeles for murdering Marion Parker.

It was disclosed Wednesday that Edwards probably was the man responsible for arousing first suspicion against "The Fox." This was revealed in a deposition made by the former Kansas City chief of police, which was read at the trial.

"It would be taking blood money for me to accept one cent," Edwards said.

"Stabilization of the actual rate of the franc," Poincaré explained, "necessarily would be followed by revalorization of the salaries of state employees. The budget equilibrium would be upset unless new taxes were imposed. It would mean beginning all over again to rehabilitate our finances."

"The government will act only when it can offer not perhaps the best solution but anyway the least bad one."

"France must return to the gold standard, but in conditions causing a minimum of injustice."

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 3.—(U.P.)—Suit to confiscate a farm worth $35,000, upon which an illicit still was found by prohibition agents, was started by the federal government here today.

This is believed the first time that the government has taken action against property as extensive as a farm.

The farm is owned by Cornelius J. Mulchay. It is in Washington county, on the Hudson road.

Andrew J. Volstead, father of the 18th amendment and legal advisor to the northwest prohibition department, stated he believed that action could be taken under an old statute which provides for confiscation of land used for purposes of defrauding the government.

It is charged in the proceedings instituted today that a still, operated by Sam Sanders was confiscated in July, 1926. The still, according to the petition for confiscation was for "purposes of and with intent to defraud the government of internal revenue taxes."

Sanders was arrested and given a 90 day sentence in the Ramsey county jail following a raid on the farm. The case against Mulchay was dismissed, however.

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 3.—(U.P.)—At least seven rebels were killed in recent engagements with a troop of marines, headed by Captain Roger W. Peard of Iowa, according to reports today from the San Albino mine district.

The troop engaged in five fights in two days without losing a man or animal, the reports said.

In one of the encounters Captain Peard's troop was attacked in camp early in the morning, but managed to fight off the rebels successfully.

The engagements preceded the marine advance on El Chipote.

The small troop started its patrol trip on January 20, going south from San Albino as far as Buena Vista and thence towards Jicar.

The troop later joined Major Archibald's advance on El Chipote.

They reported in addition to the seven known dead they had counted several fresh graves along their route.

Persistent rumors continued among conservative politicians here today that the United States was considering the possibility of having General Emiliano Chamorro, former president, ousted from Nicaragua if he continued opposition to the McCoy electoral law.

Chamorro was understood to have said he expected some such action.

Chamorro is understood to have told friends that he was determined that the law in its original form, giving the United States complete supervision in the coming elections, should not pass.

A substitute law relegating General McCoy to little more than an observer has passed the house and is now in the hands of the Nicaraguan senate.

ACTION STARTED BY THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

BELIEVED FIRST TIME SO EXTENSIVE ACTION UNDERTAKEN AGAINST FARM

LAND OWNED BY CORNELIUS J. MULCHAY IN WASHINGTON COUNTY

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 3. — (U.P.) — Suit to confiscate a farm worth $35,000, upon which an illicit still was found by prohibition agents, was started by the federal government here today.

This is believed the first time that the government has taken action against property as extensive as a farm.

The farm is owned by Cornelius J. Mulchay. It is in Washington county, on the Hudson road.

Andrew J. Volstead, father of the 18th amendment and legal advisor to the northwest prohibition department, stated he believed that action could be taken under an old statute which provides for confiscation of land used for purposes of defrauding the government.

It is charged in the proceedings instituted today that a still, operated by Sam Sanders was confiscated in July, 1926. The still, according to the petition for confiscation was for "purposes of and with intent to defraud the government of internal revenue taxes."

Sanders was arrested and given a 90 day sentence in the Ramsey county jail following a raid on the farm. The case against Mulchay was dismissed, however.

The plane, the third sent to Nicaragua in two months, will be used to transport supplies to U. S. marines fighting insurgents in the interior.

7 REBELS KILLED IN ENGAGEMENTS WITH MARINES

TROOP COMMANDED BY CAPT. ROGER W. PEARD IN CON-STANT BRUSHES

HAD FIVE FIGHTS IN TWO DAYS WITHOUT LOSING A MAN OR ANIMAL

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 3. — (U.P.) — At least seven rebels were killed in recent engagements with a troop of marines, headed by Captain Roger W. Peard of Iowa, according to reports today from the San Albino mine district.

The troop engaged in five fights in two days without losing a man or animal, the reports said.

In one of the encounters Captain Peard's troop was attacked in camp early in the morning, but managed to fight off the rebels successfully.

The engagements preceded the marine advance on El Chipote.

The small troop started its patrol trip on January 20, going south from San Albino as far as Buena Vista and thence towards Jicarao.

The troop later joined Major Archibald's advance on El Chipote. They reported in addition to the seven known dead they had counted several fresh graves along their route.

Persistent rumors continued among conservative politicians here today that the United States was considering the possibility of having General Emiliano Chamorro, former president, ousted from Nicaragua if he continued opposition to the McCoy electoral law. Chamorro was understood to have said he expected some such action.

Chamorro is understood to have told friends that he was determined that the law in its original form, giving the United States complete supervision in the coming elections, should not pass.

A substitute law relegating General McCoy to little more than an observer has passed the house and is now in the hands of the Nicaraguan senate.

When a neighbor missed his leather-bound scripture, and found it in Peeler's possession, he caused the latter's arrest.

Peeler admitted taking the Bible. He said he wanted to read it. So a kindly judge permitted the return of the good-book to its owner, contributed toward a fund to buy Peeler a Bible of his own, and dismissed the theft charge.

Coffee is Like Rare Perfume!

FRESHLY roasted coffee begins to lose its pleasing flavor and aroma the in-the course of this evaporation most of the delicate essential oils, which mean

When properly protected coffee means so

ABOUT INCREASE OF WOLVES

THE large invasion of wolves in territory near Walker, Remer, Brainerd and Little Falls is now laid to a new cause, and the yarn in question comes from a correspondent at Kelliher, who in a story in the Twin City papers says packs of Alaskan black wolves, the largest species of its kind in North America and the fiercest "killers" have invaded Minnesota and are driving away gray and timber wolves toward the farming sections.

"Old timers at Kelliher state that the reason Cass, Crow Wing, Aitkin and a score of other counties in the state are experiencing their largest bounty payments for wolves this winter is due, in the main, to the invasion of the state by the Alaskan wolf, whose normal range is Canada. Because of deep snows and a scarcity of food across the international boundary the wolves have invaded Minnesota where they are finding deer plentiful and partridges on the gain in certain sections."

"Trappers working out of International Falls are carrying rifles as protection against the animals which invade the trap lines and are driving deer south to more protected areas. The trappers describe the Alaskan wolf as a powerful animal standing nearly four feet high with a solid black coat of fur with the exception of the throat and breast, which is white. He is exceedingly hard to catch and is considered by far the fiercest of his kind."

DIRT ROADS COST SOMETHING

MAINTENANCE cost of unpaved trunk highways in Minnesota during 1927 was from $18 to $2,032 more per mile than for maintenance of paved roads carrying more traffic, J. E. Reynolds of Mankato, advocate of an organized good roads movement, says.

He will be one of the speakers at a statewide mass meeting in St. Paul on February 15, when an effort will be made to unite a working force for improved roads in the state and to support a proposed $20,000,000 highway bond program.

Reynolds has visited all sections of the state and asserts that sentiment for hard surfaced roads in Minnesota has grown during the past year and is much stronger and more general throughout the state. From the standpoint of economy, he declared, paved roads would save the state money within six years.

In the wet spring of last year, the unpaved roads plunged Minnesota in the mud for some time, disrupted business with the farmers and piled up expense, insofar as road foundations had to be replaced on the gravel sections.

BOWLEGS

A MAN will go through life with a pair of bowlegs and think nothing of it. In fact, a bow-legged man adopting the career of a sailor will cling to the deck better than a straight-legged individual. The broad sweep of the sailor's "trow" does not hide the supposed deformity. And in civil life the collegiate trousers or Oxford bags, however, conceal the are of the bowlegs.

But not so with the ladies. Short skirts, ever growing exposure of silk clad legs and knees makes a bowleg take to the open. It caused a girl in Chicago to go to a beauty doctor who sawed the bones of the legs in an attempt to straighten them. Then followed discussions between rival camps of doctors, gangrene set in and the girl lost the legs, bow-legged as they were. Now she lies on a bed of pain and her life is even despaired of.

We think we should be satisfied with the underpinning that a Creator has given us. A pair of bowlegs is better than none at all.

SPRING IS COMING

THE incursion of the ground hog into weather conditions and the prophecy that only six weeks of winter remain, indicates that spring is just around the corner.

To further bring it to mind we have the automobile license tax going hand in hand with the urge to spin into the great outdoors. Truly, the winter, with the exception of the month of December, has not been such a hardship.

Spring means the return of the birds, planting of a garden, taking down the storm windows, house cleaning, pounding rugs, rejuvenating the car, cleaning up the lake cottage, etc. We have a splendid climate, a grand country, a good town, an ideal lake vicinity, a prosperous farm neighborhood, and a lot of friendly tourists who see us annually in increasing numbers. We hail the young lady, Miss Spring, even while Old Man Winter may still toss a few blizzards at us.

ARE POLITICS SLOWING UP?

HAVE you ever noticed the different talks you hear about the store stoves these winter nights? queries the Verndale Sun.

It does not lean to politics much, does it? The conversation of the men of leisure has changed in the past few years greatly. It used to be "who will be candidate on this ticket and on that?" but now more interest is shown in the new model cars coming out next year and the price they will sell at.

Much talk is about past large murders and robberies far and near but little is heard about the political candidates or what party will be in power. In fact automobile talk is predominating among the men and how to play bridge among the women. Once in a while we hear somebody discussing the farm legislation which is expected to pass this session of congress.

SYNOPSIS

Don Hernandez Vasquez and his beautiful granddaughter Dolores occupy the old Vasquez hacienda and broad acres overlooking San Francisco Bay, originally granted to the first Vasquez in 1776 by King Philip of Spain. The prosperity that has come to San Francisco as the result of the discovery of gold has passed by the Vasquez ranch where indolent ways have not kept abreast of modern progress. But the Vasquez acres are coveted by Buckwell, San Francisco's political boss, and his emissary, Brandon, with Brandon's nephew, Terry, are sent to the ranch with an offer to buy it.

CHAPTER III—Continued

The report of a cannon in the peaceful quiet of the room could not have been more startling. Vasquez stiffened and his veiled hands clutched the arm of his chair. Such a proposition was inevitable. His extensive acres were too valuable to be overlooked by promoters in San Francisco. But he hated to sell. The ranch boundaries were the only ones he had ever known. They were the ancestral stronghold of the Vasquez family and he loved all their past glories and present deteriorating magnificence. The ranch was like himself—old—but that was no reason it should be disposed of.

"Let us not hurry, señor," Vasquez managed to say; he even smiled as if Brandon's crude manner of putting the matter must be overlooked. "To a Vasquez, business is never so important as hospitality to his guests."

As he played he turned casually toward the balcony.

The same peon who had accompanied Dolores on the guitar entered at this moment with a cobweb covered bottle from which he filled three exquisite wine glasses. He handled the bottle with a reverence almost amounting to veneration. The ceremony over, he withdrew.

"To your health, señores!" toasted Vasquez. He tipped his wine in keen enjoyment.

Terry followed his example with a deep respect for the old grandee's courtly manner and traditional background; but Brandon drained his glass at a gulp, rested his arms on the table and said:

"Well, let's go. I have some papers here—"

Terry had been searching for an excuse to return to the patio and find the dancer. His uncle's statement offered a pretense and he seized it.

"Your papers are in the brief case—in the carriage—I'll get them," he interrupted and rising hastily backed toward the patio door.

"Never mind," said Brandon impatiently. "It is not necessary—I have all I need for the present."

But Terry was determined to see more of the girl if he could find her. "It is no trouble at all," he insisted and grabbing his hat rushed out into the patio, immediately dismissing all thought of the brief case. He paused and looked around for "the Spanish dancing girl." She was nowhere to be seen. In annoyed disappointment he sauntered over to the fountain and from the wide tiled edge idly picked up Dolores' gaily decorated guitar that the peon left when he finished accompanying her in the dance.

While bending over the clear fountain pool he saw a vision mirrored in its depth that held him spellbound with admiration. The girl he sought was stealthily watching from the balcony above as she listened and admired with sparkling eyes.

Terry knew that the fairest colleen of all Ireland could not compare with her in beauty and sweet allurements.

He drew back and smiled at the memory of her lovely reflection in the water. Then straightening up, with the guitar in his hands, he began strumming and as he played he turned casually toward the balcony, pretending he had no idea anyone was there. Like the Pied Piper of Hamelin his music lured Dolores from the vine covered retreat and with eager interest she listened with sparkling eyes.

Terry moved closer and closer to the balcony as he played and then, when he was directly beneath her, he suddenly looked up, smiled mockingly and caught her by surprise.

"Oh!" she exclaimed, starting nervously. There was no time to retreat. She was conscious of blushing, but not of her smile.

"Senorita, come down—please!" coaxed Terry.

Dolores said, "No!" very faintly but shook her head vigorously.

"Come down and play for me," he pleaded, holding out the guitar invitingly. "I can only strum. Play 'Spanish Moonlight.' I have always wanted to hear it by someone who knew how—I am sure you do," he flattered irresistibly.

By good Irish luck he had mentioned her favorite air. She hesitated only a moment and then with a mischievous laugh, because she knew she was doing wrong, Dolores ran lightly down the steps and held out both hands for the instrument.

Terry gave it to her automatically. Her beauty was like the vivid, fresh fragrance of a gorgeous flower. He wanted to draw nearer and touch her to make sure she was real, yet was afraid his very presence would blench her exquisiteness. For a moment the world stood still, his temples throbbed and her loveliness filled every convolution of his brain. His heart beat wildly as if rejoicing that its mate had been found. Terry knew something had happened to him, but at the moment he was not sane enough to call it by its right name, "LOVE."

"And to think I have never seen you before!" he sighed in regret.

Dolores glanced at him quickly from the corners of her eyes. "I came to play for you—not talk," she reminded, all unconscious of the coquettish look in her eyes, and sitting beside the fountain she dutifully began the opening chords of "Spanish Moonlight."

For a long time neither spoke. Finally Terry's admiring gaze made Dolores raise her head until their eyes met and held.

"What is your name?" he asked softly, in time with the music.

"Dolores—I am named after the Dolores Mission that used to be called 'Old San Francisco de Asis.'"

Terry nodded in approval. He felt that no name he had ever heard could have suited her better. "Call me 'Terry' will you?" he asked earnestly.

"I'll try," and for the first time Dolores looked away from his eyes. It made her feel just a little lonely. She wondered what would happen if her grandfather came out and found her talking with this strange young man who had been properly presented. However, she dismissed all thought of sending him away. Nothing quite so exciting as their meeting had ever happened at the rancho before.

Dolores knew she should not feel that way about an unconventional thing, but she did!

"I have never seen you in town—Dolores," Terry's voice broke into her thoughts. "Where do you go when you come in?"

"I have never been to San Francisco, señor," replied Dolores a bit regretfully, then she paused to recall how his voice sounded when he said her name. She liked it. "We Vasquez are Spanish, you know," she continued. "Our women remain at home."

"That seems unreasonable," Terry frowned his indignation at the secluded custom. "The town is glorious! Haven't you even seen its theatres, its wonderful cafes—its famous Cocktail Route?"

"No—none of them," she had often thought she would like to go and had spent many a solitary twilight hour dreaming about what town life was like.

"It is unbelievable," and Terry launched forth in a description of the Old San Francisco that was so near her home and which tradition prevented her enjoying.

As he chatted on with increasing animation, Dolores stole several furtive glances. Her admiration was obvious. She quickly turned away to avoid his direct scrutiny. He suddenly forgot what he was saying, and just looked at her, dumbly. She glanced back and her eyes met once more. Both laughed, a little embarrassed. Dolores recovered herself first.

"I live in a world apart from all that," she said shaking her dainty head. "I am afraid this paradise you speak of would never accept me."

"You are mistaken. It would worship you!"

Dolores liked Terry's flattery but it was embarrassing. Bending over her guitar to hide crimson cheeks she finished the song in record time and put the instrument aside to pick a red rose bud.

"May I have it?" Terry held out his hand.

Is He Kind?

Open a, o, etc., Raised Terminals Round Bases—Kind.

Both backhand and slanting writers may be kind, but the backhand writer is more hesitant about expressing his sympathies as quickly as the writer slants forward with rounded letters, especially at the base.

The writing whose script Roundness, Kind, will not change its slant.

As a rule, the kind person does not close his a's, o's, etc., with a light little loop of secretiveness. They will be closed or slightly open, but not bound tightly.

The terminals of the letters have a tendency to rise, and they are, as a rule, fairly long terminals—not cut short with interest in self alone.

The writing may be lacking force, wild imagination and hard business qualities, for, as a rule, the person who is kind at all times has much resignation in the nature. Hence we find the t bars crossed more toward the center, or low down, than we find them flying to the right or at the top of the upright.

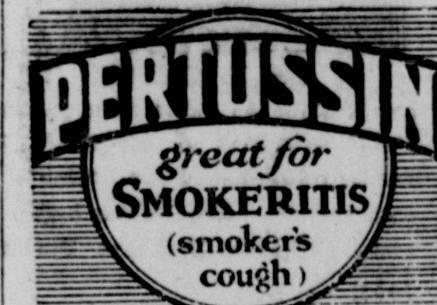

Here again, as in the case of sympathy, the n's look like u's, or their strokes will be wide apart—not cramped tightly together.

The spacing between the letters as well as the words is usually even and liberal in the writing of the person whose outstanding qualities are kindness, benevolence and sympathy for everyone.

Note.—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied. (Copyright.)

SYNOPSIS

Don Hernandez Vasquez and his beautiful granddaughter Dolores occupy the old Vasquez hacienda and broad acres overlooking San Francisco Bay, originally granted to the first Vasquez in 1776 by King Philip of Spain. The prosperity that has come to San Francisco as the result of the discovery of gold has passed by the Vasquez ranch where indolent ways have not kept abreast of modern progress. But the Vasquez acres are coveted by Buckwell, San Francisco's political boss, and his emissary, Brandon, with Brandon's nephew, Terry, are sent to the ranch with an offer to buy it.

CHAPTER III—Continued

The report of a cannon in the peaceful quiet of the room could not have been more startling. Vasquez stiffened and his vein ribbed hands clutched the arm of his chair. Such a proposition was inevitable. His extensive acres were too valuable to be overlooked by promoters in San Francisco. But he hated to sell. The rancho boundaries were the only ones he had ever known. They were the ancestral stronghold of the Vasquez family and he loved all their past glories and present deteriorating magnificence. The rancho was like himself—old—but that was no reason it should be disposed of.

"Let us not hurry, señor," Vasquez managed to say; he even smiled as if Brandon's crude manner of putting the matter must be overlooked. "To a Vasquez, business is never so important as hospitality to his guests." The same man who had accompanied Dolores on the guitar entered at this moment with a cobweb covered bottle from which he filled three exquisite wine glasses. He handled the bottle with a reverence almost amounting to veneration. The ceremony over, he withdrew.

As he played he turned casually toward the balcony.

"To your health, señores!" toasted Vasquez. He sipped his wine in keen enjoyment.

Terry followed his example with a deep respect for the old grandee's courtly manner and traditional background; but Brandon drained his glass at a gulp, rested his arms on the table and said:

"Well, let's go. I have some papers here—"

Terry had been searching for an excuse to return to the patio and find the dancer. His uncle's statement offered a pretense and he seized it.

"Your papers are in the brief case—in the carriage—I'll get them," he interrupted and rising hastily backed toward the patio door.

"Never mind," said Brandon impatiently. "It is not necessary—I have all I need for the present."

But Terry was determined to see more of the girl if he could find her. "It is no trouble at all," he insisted and grabbing his hat rushed out into the patio, immediately dismissing all thought of the brief case. He paused and looked around for "the Spanish dancing girl." She was nowhere to be seen. In annoyed disappointment he sauntered over to the fountain and from the wide tiled edge idly picked up Dolores' raily decorated guitar that the peon left when he finished accompanying her in the dance.

While bending over the clear fountain pool he saw a vision mirrored in its depth that held him spellbound with admiration. The girl he sought was stealthily watching from the balcony above as she listened and admired with sparkling eyes.

Terry knew that the fairest colleen of all Ireland could not compare with her in beauty and sweet allurements.

He drew back and smiled at the memory of her lovely reflection in the water. Then straightening up, with the guitar in his hands, he began strumming and as he played he turned casually toward the balcony, pretending he had no idea anyone was there. Like the Pied Piper of Hamelin his music lured Dolores from the vine covered retreat and with eager interest she listened with sparkling eyes.

Terry moved closer and closer to the balcony as he played and then, when he was directly beneath her, he suddenly looked up, smiled mockingly and caught her by surprise.

"Oh!" she exclaimed, starting nervously. There was no time to retreat. She was conscious of blushing, but not of her smile.

"Señorita, come down—please!" coaxed Terry.

Dolores said, "No!" very faintly but shook her head vigorously.

"Come down and play for me," he pleaded, holding out the guitar invitingly. "I can only strum. Play 'Spanish Moonlight.' I have always wanted to hear it by someone who knew how—I am sure you do," he flattered irresistibly.

By good Irish luck he had mentioned her favorite air. She hesitated only a moment and then with a mischievous laugh, because she knew she was doing wrong, Dolores ran lightly down the steps and held out both hands for the instrument.

Terry gave it to her automatically. Her beauty was like the vivid, fresh fragrance of a gorgeous flower. He wanted to draw nearer and touch her to make sure she was real, yet was afraid his very presence would blight her exquisiteness. For a moment the world stood still, his temples throbed and her loveliness filled every convolution of his brain. His heart beat wildly as if rejoicing that its mate had been found. Terry knew something had happened to him, but at the moment he was not sane enough to call it by its right name, "LOVE."

"And to think I have never seen you before!" he sighed in regret.

Dolores glanced at him quickly from the corners of her eyes. "I came to play for you—not talk," she reminded, all unconscious of the coquettish look in her eyes, and sitting beside the fountain she dutifully began the opening chords of "Spanish Moonlight."

For a long time neither spoke. Finally Terry's admiring gaze made Dolores raise her head until their eyes met and held.

"What is your name?" he asked softly, in time with the music.

"Dolores—I am named after the Dolores Mission that used to be called 'Old Francisco de Asis.'"

Terry nodded in approval. He felt that no name he had ever heard could have suited her better.

"Call me 'Terry' will you?" he asked earnestly.

"I'll try," and for the first time Dolores looked away from his eyes. It made her feel just a little lonely.

She wondered what would happen if her grandfather came out and found her talking with a strange young man who had never been properly presented. However, she dismissed all thought of sending him away. Nothing quite so exciting as their meeting had ever happened at the rancho before. Dolores knew she should not feel that way about an unconventional thing, but she did!

"I have never seen you in town—Dolores," Terry's voice broke into her thoughts. "Where do you go when you come in?"

"I have never been to San Francisco, señor," replied Dolores a bit regretfully, then she paused to recall how his voice sounded when he said her name. She liked it. "We Vasquez are Spanish, you know," she continued. "Our women remain at home."

"That seems unreasonable," Terry frowned at his indication at the secluded custom. "The town is glorious! Haven't you even seen its theatres, its wonderful cafes—its famous Cocktail Route?"

"No—none of them." She had often thought she would like to go and had spent many a solitary twilight hour dreaming about what town life was like.

"It is unbelievable," and Terry launched forth in a description of the Old San Francisco that was so near her home and which tradition prevented her enjoying.

As he chattered on with increasing animation, Dolores stole several furtive glances. Her admiration was obvious. She quickly turned away to avoid his direct scrutiny.

He suddenly forgot what he was saying, and just looked at her, dumbly. She glanced back and their eyes met once more. Both laughed, a little embarrassed. Dolores recovered herself first.

"I live in a world apart from all that," she said shaking her dainty head. "I am afraid this paradise you speak of would never accept me."

"You are mistaken. It would worship you!" Dolores liked Terry's flattery but it was embarrassing. Bending over her guitar to hide crimson cheeks she finished the song in record time and put the instrument aside to pick a red rose bud.

"May I have it?" Terry held out his hand.

Is He Kind?

Open a, o, etc., Raised Terminals Round Bases—Kind.

Both backhand and slanting writers may be kind, but the backhand writer is more hesitant about expressing his sympathies as quickly as the writer slants forward with rounded letters, especially at the base.

The writing whose script will not change its slant.

As a rule, the kind person does not close his a's, o's, etc., with a light little loop of secretiveness. They will be closed or slightly open, but not bound tightly.

The terminals of the letters have a tendency to rise, and they are, as a rule, fairly long terminals—not cut short with interest in self alone.

The writing may be lacking force, wild imagination and hard business qualities, for, as a rule, the person who is kind at all times has much resignation in the nature. Hence we find the t bars crossed more toward the center, or low down, than we find them flying to the right or at the top of the upright.

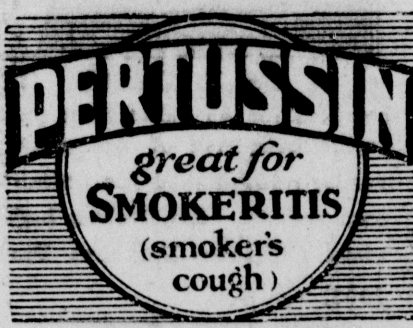

Here again, as in the case of sympathy, the n's look like u's, or their strokes will be wide apart—not cramped tightly together.

The spacing between the letters as well as the words is usually even and liberal in the writing of the person whose outstanding qualities are kindness, benevolence and sympathy for everyone.

Sisters OVER the skin

Kipling's famous "Colonel's Lady and Judy O'Grady," who were "sisters under the skin," are sisters over the skin as well in these days when the latest and most authoritative fashion news is available to every woman in the advertising columns of her newspaper.

The advertisements which meet the eye of the woman accustomed to social secretaries and liveried chauffeurs, and guide her in her selection of a wardrobe—likewise greet and guide the young lady who earns her own living. And both may be thankful that advertising has forever banished the dowdy, frumpy "female."

Where will the waistline be? Bows at the cuffs, or not? "V" neck or square? How long—or how short? What materials does Paris favor? What colors are "being worn"? Those questions are answered for everyone—in the advertisements. And with the answers are coupled the names of manufacturers and merchants who make and sell materials, trimmings, accessories, on which you can rely. For those advertised names are advertised only because they are reliable. Otherwise you would probably never hear of them.

You can follow the advertised styles with assurance—and buy by advertised names with profit

PELTZER, GERMAN RUNNER, SHOWS CLEAN PAIR OF HEELS

WINS FAME ON BOARD GARDEN TRACK

ACCORDED HIGH PLACE IN THE ESTEEM OF AMERICAN TRACK AND FIELD FANS

RUNS AWAY WITH 1,000 YARD RACE AT THE MILLROSE GAMES

By FRANK GETTY

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Feb. 3.—A new European champion—fourth in as many successive years—has won fame on the boards of Madison Square Garden and a place in the esteem of American track and field fans.

Dr. Otto Peltzer of Germany, whose first appearance in competition in the United States was so shrouded in red tape that the public well-nigh lost sight of the ability which made him a record holder at most of the middle distances, made that first appearance a memorable one last night by running away with the 1,000 yard race at the Millrose games.

Against some of the strongest competition available in this country, the German champion, running for the first time in competition on a board track, raced around his field and won handily in a driving finish reminiscent of days when he defeated Paavo Nurmi and the equally fleet Edwin Wide.

Dr. Peltzer will be recognized here as the greatest threat to the United States in the middle distance runs at Amsterdam.

The German champion has yet to meet Lloyd Hahn of the Boston A. A., of course, but may do so in a 1,000 metres run at the Illinois A. C. games in which he makes his next appearance on Feb. 19.

Lloyd Hahn and a dozen others of America's potential point winners in the 1928 Olympic games did their stuff at the Millrose games, but records were perched safely out of their reach. The Nebraskan won the Wanamaker mile in hollow fashion. Al Miller scooped the sprint series, which, if you know sprinters, is a tip-off on the class of competition he encountered. Karl Wildermuth of Georgetown was obviously over-worked.

With records perched safely beyond the reach of America's athletes interest of the 15,000 spectators naturally centered upon Dr. Peltzer.

The German lived up to expectations, yet he did not run away with his race. At the finish, he was a badly spent runner, and he said today that he hoped his experience in this first start would enable him to do better another time. Peltzer was 3.45 seconds behind the world record for 1,000 yards.

A stride ill-suited to indoor running carried Peltzer around the narrow Garden track. At times his running appeared labored.

Certainly Peltzer brings to the track nothing of the smooth perfection characteristic of Paavo Nurmi. He runs more like Edwin Wide, the Swede, whose performances here last winter were so disappointing.

Nevertheless, Peltzer manages to cover the ground. Twice, in a field of ten, he ran into pockets, but always had the spurt necessary to extricate himself. Ray Dodge provided the only serious opposition to the German. Twice Ray sprinted past Peltzer, only to be caught on the back stretch a lap and a half from home.

On his showing last night, Peltzer would stand little chance against Lloyd Hahn. The German may show considerable improvement, however, and if the two come together in Chicago next week, Peltzer may spring a surprise.

As for the performances of the Americans, with an eye to picking out possible Olympic timber, everyone, especially the Olympic committee, was disappointed.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Orangeburg, N. Y., Feb. 3.
Ted Sandwina, the man mountain from over the Rhine, may never make his way to within striking distance of the heavyweight championship of the world, but up here at Gus Wilson's Training Camp, the German Goliath already has been elected the champion eater of all time.

Gus and his amiable aides, Monsieur and Madame Le Fort, gaze in awe when Ted the Trencherman goes through his gastronomical feats.

"Nom d'un nom, never did I see anything like it," exclaimed Emilie, when Sandwina, after having stoked away a two-pound steak with three kinds of vegetables, soup, salad, and all the customary trimmings including a yard of French bread, asked if he please might have a sandwich with his coffee.

And then the German topped off his meal by eating four oranges and six apples, the camp's entire supply of after-dinner fruit.

They try to tell Ted that it shouldn't be done, and that sooner or later he will do his stomach more harm than all the wallops of the heavyweights he meets in the ring. But Sandwina turns a deaf ear and shuffles out to the kitchen for a little snack between meals. He knows he's not going anywhere in the fight business, and he figures he might as well enjoy himself in the eating business, where he is without a peer.

Running a training camp for prize fighters, most of them, of course, second raters, is a business that might not appeal to everyone. Personally, I consider such a camp a rather dull sort of place. One is tossed so constantly against so many blunted mentalities.

But Gus Wilson, the genial, hustling ever-worried trainer, runs his camp efficiently and everyone has a pretty good time. His assistants, the Le Forts, help out considerably in that respect. The camp at Orangeburg is patronized principally by foreign boxers, and there is a constant jabbering of French and Flemish.

At that, one can have a lot more fun at a training camp such as Wilson's than at the headquarters of a heavyweight champion. No one at Orangeburg is obliged to talk in whispers, stand at attention and walk on tip toe.

Gus has had experience with both kinds of camp, for he was second in command to Francois Descamps when Gorgeous Georges Carpentier was training at Manhasset for the first "Battle of the Century."

There was little of the social atmosphere of Lake Villa in the quiet old Manhasset farm house, but there certainly was an air of unrest and mystery. Georges grew grouchy and grouchy as the day of the fight approached.

That was the time when they worked the old "secret training" gag and fooled most of the sports writers into belief that Carpentier had something up his sleeve. Except for certain stipulated periods, the Manhasset farm was guarded against all visitors. On occasions Georges would sneak out to the ring behind the barn, and after all the guards were at their posts and someone had peered beneath all the beds to see that no newspaperman was lurking about, the French boxer would go through his secret training.

What did he do? Well, since I was there, I can tell the truth. Carpentier went through precisely the same sort of workout he followed on days when the public watched him. He didn't know how to do anything different. But it was a good publicity stunt.

COLLEGE CAREER OF TINY LEWIS COMES TO END

SCHOLASTIC FAILURES MARK FINISH OF BIG TEN ATHLETE

ALWAYS HOVERED CLOSE TO INELIGIBILITY THROUGHOUT TERM

By BERT M. DEMBY

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Chicago, Feb. 3.—The college career of Tiny Lewis, one of the Big Ten's greatest athletes, came to a close today because of scholastic failures.

After hovering near ineligibility throughout his career, Lewis definitely took himself out of college competition by flunking a chemistry examination in the mid-year tests.

For three years he has been one of the outstanding athletes of the western conference. He starred on Northwestern's football team for three seasons. His track performances ranked him with the best of the college all-around men.

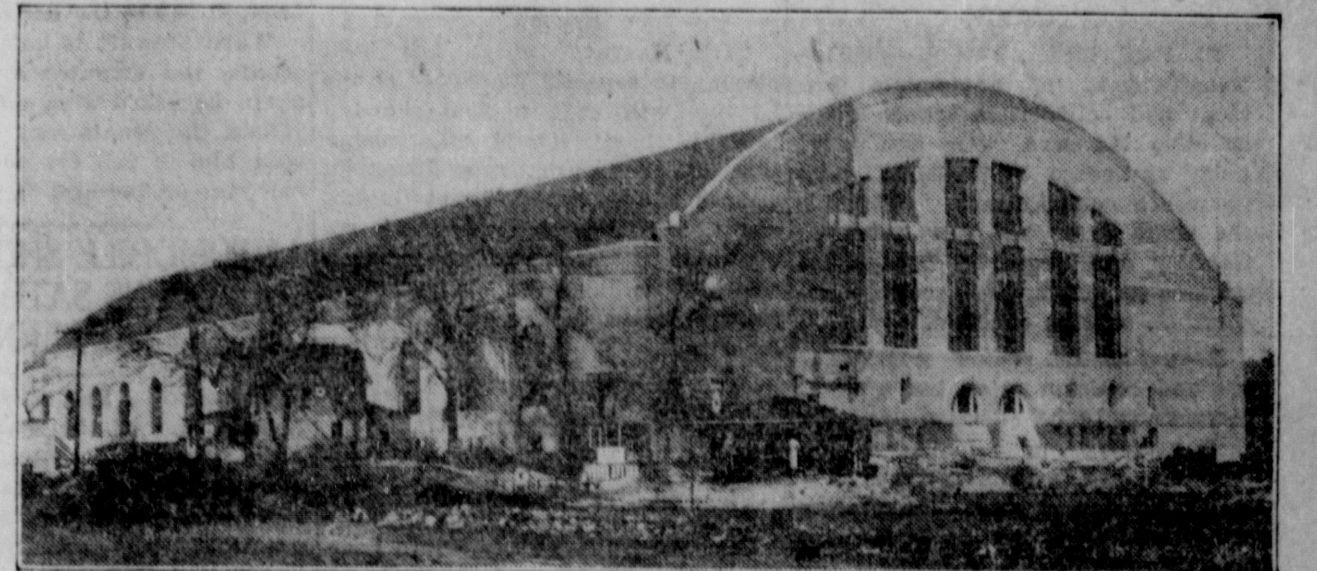

Last spring he set a new Big Ten shot-put record with a heave of 47 feet, 3 inches. In the only dual meet in which Northwestern has participated this year, Lewis led all scorers with 13 points at Notre Dame.

In pole vaulting he can do better than 12 feet, six inches. His hurdle performances were above the average.

However, it was in football that Lewis won most of his honors.

He was admitted to Northwestern on probation from high school but was excluded during his second year.

University of Minnesota Dedicates New Field House

Dedication of the University of Minnesota Field House, Saturday, February 4, in a game between the Minnesota and Ohio State basketball teams, marks the accomplishment of a purpose on which Minnesota has been set since 1923 when the Stadium was begun. The Field House provides a perfectly modern basketball court, with permanent seats for more than 9,000, bleacher seats that will bring the total to 14,000, and a possibility of enlargement that will make a grand total of 17,500.

Measuring 146 by 236 feet, and with a height of 52 feet at the eaves and 107 feet at the ridgepole, the Field House is one of the largest single buildings in the state of Minnesota, but the cost of construction has been held down by the fact that it was necessary only to build a shell. The interior is a "field" where football, track, baseball and basketball teams may play. It will be especially useful in giving Minnesota a chance to begin baseball practice earlier in the spring, to practice football indoors in bad weather, and to play basketball on a home floor where there is accommodation for the thousands who wish to see the Gophers in action. A swimming pool will be built when more money becomes available.

The Field House cost $650,000, of which the University had $200,000 on hand from athletic profits and borrowed $450,000 against future athletic earnings, without pledging the credit of the state or any university property as security for the loan. Of these bonds, $125,000 have already been paid off, a transaction which is probably the only one on record in which a building bond issue was partly paid off before the structure had been completed.

PELTZER, GERMAN RUNNER, SHOWS CLEAN PAIR OF HEELS

WINS FAME ON BOARD GARDEN TRACK

ACCORDED HIGH PLACE IN THE ESTEEM OF AMERICAN TRACK AND FIELD FANS

RUNS AWAY WITH 1,000 YARD
RACE AT THE MILLROSE
GAMES

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Feb. 3.—A new European champion—fourth in as many successive years—has won fame on the boards of Madison Square Garden and a place in the esteem of American track and field fans.

Dr. Otto Peltzer of Germany, whose first appearance in competition in the United States was so shrouded in red tape that the public well-nigh lost sight of the ability which made him a record holder at most of the middle distances, made that first appearance a memorable one last night by running away with the 1,000 yard race at the Millrose games.

Against some of the strongest competition available in this country, the German champion, running for the first time in competition on a board track, raced around his field and won handily in a driving finish reminiscent of days when he defeated Paavo Nurmi and the equally fleet Edvin Wide.

Dr. Peltzer will be recognized here as the greatest threat to the United States in the middle distance runs at Amsterdam.

The German champion has yet to meet Lloyd Hahn of the Boston A. A., of course, but may do so in a 1,000 metres run at the Illinois A. C. games in which he makes his next appearance on Feb. 19.

Lloyd Hahn and a dozen others of America's potential point winners in the 1928 Olympic games did their stuff at the Millrose games, but records were perched safely out of their reach. The Nebraskan won the Wanamaker mile in hollow fashion. Al Miller scooped the sprint series, which, if you know sprinters, is a tip-off on the class of competition he encountered. Karl Wildermuth of Georgetown was obviously over-worked.

With records perched safely beyond the reach of America's athletes interest of the 15,000 spectators naturally centered upon Dr. Peltzer.

The German lived up to expectations, yet he did not run away with his race. At the finish, he was a badly spent runner, and he said today that he hoped his experience in this first start would enable him to do better another time. Peltzer was 3 4-5 seconds behind the world record for 1,000 yards.

A stride ill-suited to indoor running carried Peltzer around the narrow Garden track. At times his running appeared labored.

Certainly Peltzer brings to the track nothing of the smooth perfection characteristic of Paavo Nurmi. He runs more like Edvin Wide, the Swede, whose performances here last winter were so disappointing.

Nevertheless, Peltzer manages to cover the ground. Twice, in a field of ten, he ran into pockets, but always had the spurt necessary to extricate himself. Ray Dodge provided the only serious opposition to the German. Twice Ray sprinted past Peltzer, only to be caught on the back stretch a lap and a half from home.

On his showing last night, Peltzer would stand little chance against Lloyd Hahn. The German may show considerable improvement, however, and if the two come together in Chicago next week, Peltzer may spring a surprise.

As for the performances of the Americans, with an eye to picking out possible Olympic timber, everyone, especially the Olympic committee, was disappointed.

Establishment of a "College of the Air" as a memorial to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who will be sought as a research director.

Encouragement of further use of airplanes in commerce, study of national defense problems, promotion of a national airports program, and general upbuilding of the aviation industry.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Orangeburg, N. Y., Feb. 3.

Ted Sandwina, the man mountain from over the Rhine, may never make his way to within striking distance of the heavyweight championship of the world, but up here at Gus Wilson's Training Camp, the German Goliath already has been elected the champion eater of all time.

Gus and his amiable aides, Monsieur and Madame Le Fort, gaze in awe when Ted the Trencherman goes through his gastronomical feats.

"Nom d'un nom, never did I see anything like it," exclaimed Emil, when Sandwina, after having stoked away a two-pound steak with three kinds of vegetables, soup, salad, and all the customary trimmings including a yard of French bread, asked if he please might have a sandwich with his coffee.

And then the German topped off his meal by eating four oranges and six apples, the camp's entire supply of after-dinner fruit.

They try to tell Ted that it shouldn't be done, and that sooner or later he will do his stomach more harm than all the wallows of the heavyweights he meets in the ring. But Sandwina turns a deaf ear and shuffles out to the kitchen for a little snack between meals. He knows he's not going anywhere in the fight business, and he figures he might as well enjoy himself in the eating business, where he is without a peer.

Running a training camp for prize fighters, most of them, of course, second raters, is a business that might not appeal to everyone. Personally, I consider such a camp a rather dull sort of place. One is tossed so constantly against so many blunted mentalities.

But Gus Wilson, the genial, hustling ever-worried trainer, runs his camp efficiently and everyone has a pretty good time. His assistants, the Le Forts, help out considerably in that respect. The camp at Orangeburg is patronized principally by foreign boxers, and there is a constant jabbering of French and Flemish.

At that, one can have a lot more fun at a training camp such as Wilson's than at the headquarters of a heavyweight champion. No one at Orangeburg is obliged to talk in whispers, stand at attention and walk on tip toe.

Gus has had experience with both kinds of camp, for he was second in command to Francois Descamps when Gorgeous Georges Carpentier was training at Manhasset for the first "Battle of the Century."

There was little of the social atmosphere of Lake Villa in the quiet old Manhasset farm house, but there certainly was an air of unrest and mystery. Georges grew grouchy and grouchy as the day of the fight approached.

That was the time when they worked the old "secret training" gag and fooled most of the sports writers into belief that Carpentier had something up his sleeve. Except for certain stipulated periods, the Manhasset farm was guarded against all visitors. On occasions Georges would sneak out to the ring behind the barn, and after all the guards were at their posts and someone had peered beneath all the beds to see that no newspaperman was lurking about, the French boxer would go through his secret training.

What did he do? Well, since I was there, I can tell the truth. Carpentier went through precisely the same sort of workout he followed on days when the public watched him. He didn't know how to do anything different. But it was a good publicity stunt.

COLLEGE CAREER OF TINY LEWIS COMES TO END

SCHOLASTIC FAILURES MARK FINISH OF BIG TEN
ATHLETE

ALWAYS HOVERED CLOSE TO IN-ELIGIBILITY THROUGH-OUT TERM

By BERT M. DEMBY

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Chicago, Feb. 3.—The college career of Tiny Lewis, one of the Big Ten's greatest athletes, came to a close today because of scholastic failures.

After hovering near ineligibility throughout his career, Lewis definitely took himself out of college competition by flunking a chemistry examination in the mid-year tests.

For three years he has been one of the outstanding athletes of the western conference. He starred on Northwestern's football team for three seasons. His track performances ranked him with the best of the college all-around men.

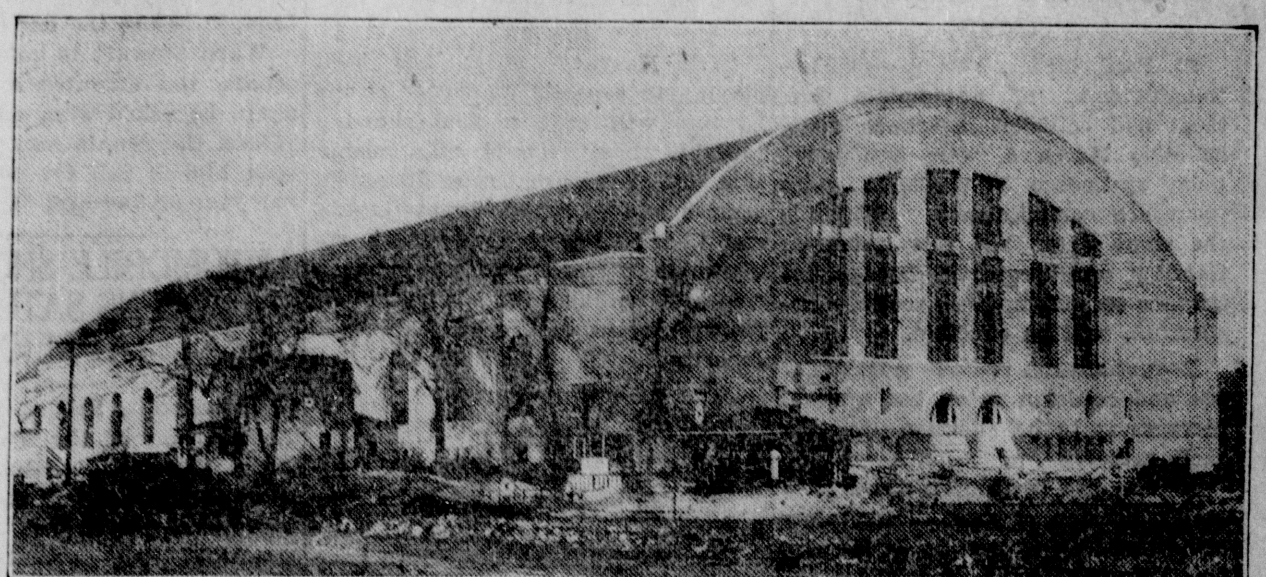

Last spring he set a new Big Ten shot-put record with a heave of 47 feet, 3 inches. In the only dual meet in which Northwestern has participated this year, Lewis led all scorers with 13 points at Notre Dame.

In pole vaulting he can do better than 12 feet, six inches. His hurdle performances were above the average.

However, it was in football that Lewis won most of his honors.

He was admitted to Northwestern on probation from high school but was excluded during his second year.

University of Minnesota Dedicates New Field House

Dedication of the University of Minnesota Field House, Saturday February 4, in a game between the Minnesota and Ohio State basketball teams, marks the accomplishment of a purpose on which Minnesota has been set since 1923 when the Stadium was begun. The Field House provides a perfectly modern basketball court, with permanent seats for more than 9,000, bleacher seats that will bring the total to 14,000, and a possibility of enlargement that will make a grand total of 17,500.

Measuring 146 by 236 feet, and with a height of 52 feet at the eaves and 107 feet at the ridgepole, the Field House is one of the largest, single buildings in the state of Minnesota, but the cost of construction has been held down by the fact that it was necessary only to build a shell. The interior is a "field" where football, track, baseball and basketball teams may play. It will be especially useful in giving Minnesota a chance to begin baseball practice earlier in the spring, to practice football indoors in bad weather, and to play basketball on a home floor where there is accommodation for the thousands who wish to see the Gophers in action. A swimming pool will be built when more money becomes available.

The Field House cost $650,000, of which the University had $200,000 on hand from athletic profits and borrowed $450,000 against future athletic earnings, without pledging the credit of the state or any university property as security for the loan. Of these bonds, $125,000 have already been paid off, a transaction which is probably the only one on record in which a building bond issue was partly paid off before the structure had been completed.

READJUSTMENT OF AUTO INSURANCE RATES MARCH 5

SAME DATE THAT NEW RATES
ON LIABILITY INSURANCE
ARE EFFECTIVE

REDUCTIONS MADE IN MOST OF
FIRE AND COLLISION
RATES

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 3.—(UP)—Readjustment of automobile fire, theft and collision insurance rates, effective March 5, were announced today by George W. Wells, Jr., state insurance commissioner. This is the same date that new rates on liability and property damage insurance on automobiles, recently announced, will be effective.

Reductions are made in most of the fire and collision rates, but a small increase is to be effective in the theft rate.

In the fire insurance, there is a reclassification of risks. Heretofore the classification was by zones, the first being the three large cities, the second suburban areas, the third the remainder of the state.

The new classification is on the basis of value, "A" rates applying to high priced machines on which an increase of 3.6 per cent is made, and "B," the lower priced automobiles, on which the rate is reduced about 15 per cent.

The latter classification—the "B" class—includes more than two-thirds of the automobiles in the state, Wells said.

The theft rates are increased 1.6 per cent, the same increase being effective all over the state, except for Duluth, where the rate increase is but .5 per cent.

In the collision rates, about 90 per cent of the machines are given a substantial reduction in rates, but there is an increase, ranging up to 10 per cent on high priced cars.

Lionel Barrymore Coming in
Thrilling Mystery Drama.

Lionel Barrymore, noted star of the stage and screen, has forsaken

the role of a gentleman lover for that of a mysterious professor—sort of a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" character.

In contrast to his portrayal of the millionaire sweetheart of a pleasure-seeking young woman (Pauline Starke) in Edmund Goulding's "Women Love Diamonds," he is playing a leading character role in "The Thirteenth Hour," Chester M. Franklin's latest mystery drama for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which comes Saturday to the Lyceum theatre.

Tonight Last Chance to See "7th Heaven"

"7th Heaven" which has been playing to capacity audiences at the Lyceum will have a final showing tonight. None should miss seeing this, one of the greatest of all screen dramas and in which Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell give such a remarkable performance, as to have won the enthusiastic admiration of picture lovers and critics all over America.

ROBERT W. STEWART WILL BE CITED FOR CONTEMPT OF SENATE

Washington, Feb. 3.—(UP)—The senate public lands committee voted unanimously this afternoon to take steps for citation of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana for contempt for refusal to answer questions about the $50,000,000 deal of oil men in 1921.

The committee will report to the senate later this afternoon a resolution recommending that Stewart be brought before the bar of the senate.

When Stewart is haled before the senate, the disputed questions will again be asked him, and should he refuse, the senate may then vote to send him to jail for not more than one year or fine him $1,000, or both.

AUTOMOBILE SHOW OPENS SATURDAY AT MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Feb. 2. — With the 21st edition of the Twin City National Automobile Show all set to get away to a flying start next Saturday, all Northwest motordom is awaiting the presentation with greater interest than in years.

Manager Harry E. Wilcox and the board of directors have spent more time and effort on the 1928 exhibition than they did in past years and they believe their efforts will show in the result achieved.

While last year's record attendance of 130,000 may not be reached, the men behind the undertaking believe that this year's patronage will come very close to the record.

The impressive attendance at the New York show earlier last month astounded veteran automobile men and they believe the results in Gotham will be reflected at the local show.

The recent decision of the larger factories to award their exhibits to the Minneapolis show instead of to St. Louis, Kansas City and other middle West cities that sought them, stamps the Twin City exposition in Minneapolis as one of the headlines of the country. Manager Wilcox said.

"This decision merely proves our contention that our show is in the National class," he explained today. "Barring New York, Chicago and Boston, we will have the most comprehensive motor display in the country. Several other smaller cities in the state will have their exhibitions but they will be merely local displays."

"SEND THE KIDDIES"

Tired people . . .

SO MANY women, so many men, can't last through the day. Even mid-afternoon finds them listless and spent. Hopelessly tired.

What a difference it would mean if they but realized how constipation saps health and energy. How it steals youth. Mocks beauty. Kills ambition. How it leads in the end to untold diseases.

And it can be so easily relieved. So surely and safely prevented. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve it promptly and pleasantly. To prevent it ever beginning its deadly work.

Why "all-bran" is necessary

To relieve constipation naturally, the system must have plenty of bulk. ALL-BRAN, because it is 100% bran, furnishes bulk in generous quantity. It carries moisture through the intestines—exercising them, gently sweeping out poisons and wastes. There is seldom enough bulk to properly do this work in a part-bran product. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN—the 100% bran.

Farewell, dangerous
drugs

How much better is ALL-BRAN than habit-forming pills and laxatives—whose dose must be constantly increased to remain effective. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a pleasant, healthful cereal food. Don't you agree that it is far safer and far better to correct constipation in this natural way than to risk pills, drugs or part-bran products?

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream—with fruits or honey added. Use it in cooking too. Sprinkle it into soups. Mix it with other cereals. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal.

But insist on genuine Kellogg's. Don't risk part-bran substitutes. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served in hotels, restaurants. On dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Kellogg's
ALL-BRAN

Guaranteed!
Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

READJUSTMENT OF AUTO INSURANCE RATES MARCH 5

SAME DATE THAT NEW RATES

REDUCTIONS MADE IN MOST OF
RATES

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 3.—(UP)—Readjustment of automobile fire, theft and collision insurance rates, effective March 5, were announced today by George W. Wells, Jr., state insurance commissioner. This is the same date that new rates on liability and property damage insurance on automobiles, recently announced, will be effective.

Reductions are made in most of the fire and collision rates, but a small increase is to be effective in the theft rate.

In the fire insurance, there is a reclassification of risks. Heretofore the classification was by zones, the first being the three large cities, the second suburban areas, the third the remainder of the state.

The new classification is on the basis of value, "A" rates applying to high priced machines on which an increase of 3.6 per cent is made, and "B," the lower priced automobiles, on which the rate is reduced about 15 per cent.

The latter classification—the "B" class—includes more than two-thirds of the automobiles in the state, Wells said.

The theft rates are increased 1.6 per cent, the same increase being effective all over the state, except for Duluth, where the rate increase is but .5 per cent.

In the collision rates, about 90 per cent of the machines are given a substantial reduction in rates, but there is an increase, ranging up to 10 per cent on high priced cars.

Lionel Barrymore Coming in
Thrilling Mystery Drama.

Lionel Barrymore, noted star of the stage and screen, has forsaken

the role of a gentleman lover for that of a mysterious professor—sort of a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" character.

In contrast to his portrayal of the millionaire sweetheart of a pleasure-seeking young woman (Pauline Starke) in Edmund Goulding's "Women Love Diamonds," he is playing a leading character role in "The Thirteenth Hour," Chester M. Franklin's latest mystery drama for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which comes Saturday to the Lyceum theatre.

Tonight Last Chance to See "7th Heaven"

"7th Heaven" which has been playing to capacity audiences at the Lyceum will have a final showing tonight. None should miss seeing this, one of the greatest of all screen dramas and in which Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell give such a remarkable performance, as to have won the enthusiastic admiration of picture lovers and critics all over America.

ROBERT W. STEWART WILL BE CITED FOR CONTEMPT OF SENATE

Washington, Feb. 3.—(UP)—The senate public lands committee voted unanimously this afternoon to take steps for citation of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana for contempt for refusal to answer questions about the $50,000,000 deal of oil men in 1921.

The committee will report to the senate later this afternoon a resolution recommending that Stewart be brought before the bar of the senate.

When Stewart is haled before the senate, the disputed questions will again be asked him, and should he refuse, the senate may then vote to send him to jail for not more than one year or fine him $1,000, or both.

AUTOMOBILE SHOW OPENS SATURDAY AT MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Feb. 2. — With the 21st edition of the Twin City National Automobile Show all set to get away to a flying start next Saturday, all Northwest motorists are awaiting the presentation with greater interest than in years.

Manager Harry E. Wilcox and the board of directors have spent more time and effort on the 1928 exhibition than they did in past years and they believe their efforts will show in the result achieved.

While last year's record attendance of 130,000 may not be reached, the men behind the undertaking believe that this year's patronage will come very close to the record.

The impressive attendance at the New York show earlier last month astounded veteran automobile men and they believe the results in Gotham will be reflected at the local show.

The recent decision of the larger factories to award their exhibits to the Minneapolis show instead of to St. Louis, Kansas City and other middle West cities that sought them, stamps the Twin City exposition in Minneapolis as one of the headlines of the country, Manager Wilcox said.

"This decision merely proves our contention that our show is in the National class," he explained today. "Barring New York, Chicago and Boston, we will have the most comprehensive motor display in the country. Several other smaller cities in the state will have their exhibitions but they will be merely local displays."

Tired people...

So MANY women, so many men, can't last through the day. Even mid-afternoon finds them listless and spent. Hopelessly tired.

What a difference it would mean if they but realized how constipation saps health and energy. How it steals youth. Mocks beauty. Kills ambition. How it leads in the end to untold diseases.

And it can be so easily relieved. So surely and safely prevented. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve it promptly and pleasantly. To prevent it ever beginning its deadly work.

Why "all-bran" is necessary

To relieve constipation naturally, the system must have plenty of bulk. ALL-BRAN, because it is 100% bran, furnishes bulk in generous quantity. It carries moisture through the intestines—exercising them, gently sweeping out poisons and wastes. There is seldom enough bulk to properly do this work in a part-bran product. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN—the 100% bran.

Farewell, dangerous
drugs

How much better is ALL-BRAN than habit-forming pills and laxatives—whose dose must be constantly increased to remain effective. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a pleasant, healthful cereal food. Don't you agree that it is far safer and far better to correct constipation in this natural way than to risk pills, drugs or part-bran products?

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream—with fruits or honey added. Use it in cooking too. Sprinkle it into soups. Mix it with other cereals. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal.

But insist on genuine Kellogg's. Don't risk part-bran substitutes. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served in hotels, restaurants. On dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Guaranteed!
Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

HOSPITAL PATIENT FOR SIXTEEN YEARS CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 3.—(UP)—A hospital patient for 16 years, blind and paralyzed, Mrs. Anna Morrison today celebrated her fiftieth birthday and the 47th anniversary of her migration to America.

There was nothing special to mark the occasion. The doctors and nurses who have attended her during the long years she has been bedridden called more often today—that was the only sign that it was a special occasion like an anniversary.

Mrs. Morrison keeps her worldly belongings stored in two small candy boxes beside her bed. An alarm clock, a gift from a friend, hangs over the bed, "just for the company of the ticking."

Oh, so white!

CLEAN, white clothes. They were washed. They were scrubbed. They were rinsed. But not in hard water. For hard water mixes with the soap and forms scum. The scum gets into the fabric. No, these clothes were not washed in hard water.

Soft water cleaned these clothes. It was hard water at first, but Melo was added. How soft Melo made that water! How clean and white the clothes were! Have you discovered Melo? Get it today at your grocer's.

Coats of Fur in Fashion Picture

Peltry Used in Unique Ways to Gain Chic Effects—Winsome Colors.

Coats of fur are no longer a distinction, for almost every woman who has a comfortable allowance for her wardrobe has one. Styles in this whole department of dress come and go with the whims and fancies in others, and swing back and forth between as wide extremes as they do in silhouette, design and detail.

In the new era of wealth fortunes are invested in splendid sable, ermine, mink and other wraps, which are worn by women of fashion for every occasion except that of active sports. It is no longer enough that a fur coat be just a coat, declares a fashion writer in the New York Times. It is expected to be as distinctive as a gown, and even more is demanded of it because of the cost. And from whatever part of the globe they are worked up into the smartest, most artistic creations. All the French couturiers include furs and fur-trimmed wraps in their collections, and "Max"—otherwise Mme. Lelroy—is a recognized authority in their design.

In her atelier on one of the fashionable boulevards she has set a stage as a background, an interior in pearl gray, against which are displayed her new compositions. Some of these this year were most unusual, reflecting the season's styles in diagonal lines, complex patterns and striking combinations. The coats made all of fur are particularly interesting because in these the designer avoids the obvious and handles fur with as much apparent nonchalance as if it were an ordinary dress fabric. Priceless pelts are put together like tiles or little mosaic patterns, making the silhouette of a coat or wrap as important as that of the gown. The number of tiny strips of fur sewn together to form one of these artistic creations represents in itself an achievement, and the finished article is worth a king's ransom.

Zebra Stripes in Fashion.

The sensation of the fur season presented by Lelroy is the zebra coat. This is a kid pelt dyed to represent a zebra, and a few coats are made of the genuine skin. The sharply lined black and white make, of course, a very flashy garment, one also not easily classified, since it may be worn for a great variety of occasions, from sports to evening wear. This novelty is finding a warm welcome among the younger set. Another strikingly new coat is made of a soft fur dyed in a rich shade of orange-beige with a deep shawl collar of brown fox. The shawl collar, wider and deeper than ever before, is Mme. Lelroy's own particular contribution to the season's mode. A successful example of this is shown in an evening wrap of rare beauty. It is a wrap-around dolman coat of ermine, quite simple in line, showing the fine quality of the fur. The coat sleeves, which are elegance and luxury is an evening wrap of white ermine with a front-band trimming, a wide and deep shawl collar and cuffs of Russian sable. In contrast to this is an all-day coat of leopard skin, on which is a knee-deep band, a round collar and wide cuffs of fitch. In between these extreme types are many others, new and smart, designed to suit the requirements and style of women of widely different tastes. Among them are the daytime wraps in fur. One that is the epitome of dignity and smartness is made of broadtail of a fine quality, which is almost as supple as velvet. A new detail in this design is the sleeve, which is wide, but is drawn in to a narrow wristband and left untrimmed. The collar is a stunning affair of genuine sable made in the popular shawl model, and extends down one side to the bottom of the coat. This is one of the best models. In it is illustrated the lavish use of sable,

Mink Collars and Cuffs Finish Wrap of Shorn Lamb.

In which fortunes are apparently being invested.

Another of the luxury furs is Eastern mink. This, too, is used in a particularly skillful manner in the models from Max. The lines are seldom straight from collar to hem, but are fitted in diagonal sections in panels, borders and rippling borders. One of the most conspicuous creations in fur is by Mme. Lelroy in an entirely different style from those of the prevailing mode. It is a decidedly feminine model—a long cape of especially selected mink skins. They are put together to form lines that resemble tucks in curves, dipping at the back and sweeping upward toward the opening in front. Toward the bottom the cape flares and is finished in a wide scalloped edge, which is much longer at the back. An amusing and cleverly done novelty is an enormous bow of the mink with crosswise bands of the fur.

A cape of different pattern, which is especially designed to be worn over an evening gown without crushing it, is made by joining ermine in long, narrow strips in such a way that they form diagonal lines as the wrap is drawn scarf-fashion over one shoulder. A long collar is made of natural marten.

Sports Fur Coats.

Fur coats named "sports" are uncommonly interesting this season. They lack the bizarre tone of past years and are much finer, both in quality and type, and serviceable for many different occasions. Many "new" furs are presented—being the hides of the same familiar animals given novel names. Madeleine Vionnet uses a sheared goat skin dyed a golden beige. Its wide, flaring cuffs and a diagonal collar, tapering to the waist, are of goat hide that is unshorn. One hears and sees a great deal about shaved lamb, which is extremely popular for sports and daytime coats in youthful models.

To the possessors of Hudson seal coats comes the assurance that Hudson seal is to be brought back into vogue as a relief from the flood of fancy furs with which we have been deluged. Henri Verne of Paris puts collars and cuffs of the flat brown striped furs on his Hudson seal coats, just as does Gruhwaldt, who further elaborates a black coat with a ladder design of mink tails running from collar to hem on the center back.

In spite of the great variety of novelty furs introduced the last few seasons one saw at the fashionable Paris gathering places last winter principally coats of mink. According to the French furriers, this is due to the innate sense of thrift of the Frenchwomen, who demand that fur coats must wear indefinitely, and is not to be taken as a guide for America, where such a fragile but attractive fur as shaved lamb, American broadtail, obtains the vogue that its beauty warrants. Either in gray or beige, with self-collar or matching fox, this fur makes many of the season's most charming coats. One of these, a straight coat in light beige broadtail, had the shawl collar and all edges bordered with an inch-and-a-half band of the same skin in brown. This same brown encircled the single deep patch pocket on the right side and also made a large flower for the lapel.

New Furs Offered.

Offerings of new furs are so varied that any of several may be accepted as correct in mode. The last word in

Coats of Fur in Fashion Picture

Peltry Used in Unique Ways to Gain Chic Effects—Winsome Colors.

Coats of fur are no longer a distinction, for almost every woman who has a comfortable allowance for her wardrobe has one. Styles in this whole department of dress come and go with the whims and fancies in others, and swing back and forth between as wide extremes as they do in silhouette, design and detail.

In the new era of wealth fortunes are invested in splendid sable, ermine, mink and other wraps, which are worn by women of fashion for every occasion except that of active sports. It is no longer enough that a fur coat be just a coat, declares a fashion writer in the New York Times. It is expected to be as distinctive as a gown, and even more is demanded of it because of the cost. And from whatever part of the globe the pelts come, it is in Paris that they are worked up into the smartest, most artistic creations. All the French couturiers include furs and fur-trimmed wraps in their collections, and "Max"—otherwise Mme. LeRoy—is a recognized authority in their design.

In her atelier on one of the fashionable boulevards she has set a stage as a background, an interior in pearl gray, against which are displayed her new compositions. Some of these this year were most unusual, reflecting the season's styles in diagonal lines, complex and striking combinations. The coats made all of fur are particularly interesting because in these the designer avoids the obvious and handles fur with as much apparent nonchalance as if it were an ordinary dress fabric. Priceless pelts are put together like tiles or little mosaic patterns, making the silhouette of a coat or wrap as important as that of the gown. The number of tiny strips of fur sewn together to form one of these artistic creations represents in itself an achievement, and the finished article is worth a king's ransom.

Zebra Stripes in Fashion.

The sensation of the fur season presented by LeRoy is the zebra coat. This is a kid pelt dyed to represent a zebra, and a few coats are made of the genuine skin. The sharply lined black and white make, of course, a very flashy garment, one also not easily classified, since it may be worn for a great variety of occasions, from sports to evening wear. This novelty is finding a warm welcome among the younger set. Another strikingly new coat is made of a soft fur dyed in a rich shade of orange-beige with a deep shawl collar of brown fox. The shawl collar, wider and deeper than ever before, is Mme. LeRoy's own particular contribution to the season's mode. A successful example of this is shown in an evening wrap of rare beauty. It is a wrap-around dolman coat of ermine, quite simple in line, showing the fine quality of the fur. The coat sleeves, which are elegance and luxury is an evening wrap of white ermine with a front-band trimming, a wide and deep shawl collar and cuffs of Russian sable. In contrast to this is an all-day coat of leopard skin, on which is a knee-deep band, a round collar and wide cuffs of fitch. In between these extreme types are many others, new and smart, designed to suit the requirements and style of women of widely different tastes. Among them are the daytime wraps in fur. One that is the epitome of dignity and smartness is made of broadtail of a fine quality, which is almost as supple as velvet. A new detail in this design is the sleeve, which is wide, but is drawn in to a narrow wristband and left untrimmed. The collar is a stunning affair of genuine sable made in the popular shawl model, and extends down one side to the bottom of the coat. This is one of the best models. In it is illustrated the lavish use of sable,

Mink Collars and Cuffs Finish Wrap of Shorn Lamb.

In which fortunes are apparently being invested.

Another of the luxury furs is Eastern mink. This, too, is used in a particularly skillful manner in the models from Max. The lines are seldom straight from collar to hem, but are fitted in diagonal sections in panels, borders and rippling borders. One of the most conspicuous creations in fur is by Mme. LeRoy in an entirely different style from those of the prevailing mode. It is a decidedly feminine model—a long cape of especially selected mink skins. They are put together to form lines that resemble tucks in curves, dipping at the back and sweeping upward toward the opening in front. Toward the bottom the cape flares and is finished in a wide scalloped edge, which is much longer at the back. An amusing and cleverly done novelty is an enormous bow of the mink with crosswise bands of the fur.

A cape of different pattern, which is especially designed to be worn over an evening gown without crushing it, is made by joining ermine in long, narrow strips in such a way that they form diagonal lines as the wrap is drawn scarf-fashion over one shoulder. A long collar is made of natural marten.

Sports Fur Coats.

Fur coats named "sports" are uncommonly interesting this season. They lack the bizarre tone of past years and are much finer, both in quality and type, and serviceable for many different occasions. Many "new" furs are presented—being the hides of the same familiar animals given novel names. Madeleine Vionnet uses a sheared goat skin dyed a golden beige. Its wide, flaring cuffs and a diagonal collar, tapering to the waist, are of goat hide that is unshorn. One hears and sees a great deal about shaved lamb, which is extremely popular for sports and daytime coats in youthful models.

To the possessors of Hudson seal coats comes the assurance that Hudson seal is to be brought back into vogue as a relief from the flood of fancy furs with which we have been deluged. Henri Verne of Paris puts collars and cuffs of the flat brown striped furs on his Hudson seal coats, just as does Grubwald, who further elaborates a black coat with a ladder design of mink tails running from collar to hem on the center back.

In spite of the great variety of novelty furs introduced the last few seasons one saw at the fashionable Paris gathering places last winter principally coats of mink. According to the French furriers, this is due to the innate sense of thrift of the French women, who demand that fur coats must wear indefinitely, and is not to be taken as a guide for America, where such a fragile but attractive fur as shaved lamb, American broadtail, obtains the vogue that its beauty warrants. Either in gray or beige, with self-collar or matching fox, this fur makes many of the season's most charming coats. One of these, a straight coat in light beige broadtail, had the shawl collar and all edges bordered with an inch-and-a-half band of the same skin in brown. This same brown encircled the single deep patch pocket on the right side and also made a large flower for the lapel.

New Furs Offered.

Offerings of new furs are so varied that any of several may be accepted as correct in mode. The last word in
